

"THE WAY THINGS TURN OUT"

Greetings and Salutations! I truly thank you for leaving a comment. Your words were kind, and full of positive energy. Today's weather forecast (outside) is warm and sunny. But the weather "forecast" in this extreme isolation seems to never change: cloudy, cold, and dreary. I want to take this time out to let you know that your words have changed the "forecast" this isolation. Your words removed the coldness and clouds, and replaced them with warmth and sunlight. Even though the removal of these things are only temporary, it was very much needed and appreciated.

SOLITARY CONFINEMENT, and the cruel and unusual use of it, has been swept under a rug for too long, so the exposure of this confinement is more than necessary. At times hopelessness and despair grabs a hold, and doesn't seem to want to let go. But it is individuals like yourself, who comes along, and changes the "forecast", and it's this small change that makes a big difference. This change helps boost spirits, and bring joy to a joyless place. This change helps one remember that even though this environment affects everyone (it's inevitable), we cannot allow ourselves to become full products of it. Also, this change helps the reopening of the mind's eye and it's back on track, back on focus.

Once focus is restored, some sort of strength is restored. Once some sort of strength is restored, determination follows. All in all, your kind words has changed the "forecast", and has brought sunlight and warmth to my cold and dark world. Your kind words helped lift my spirits, but most importantly, your kind words helped clear my mind, and helped me refocus on the fact that, "The people who turn out best, are those people who make the best out of the way things turn out."

Truly yours,

Troy
