

Reply ID : 29rk

Hello Lorraine,

Thank you for sharing that comment - excuse the delay in my reply. Since the WODZ project ended and I'm no longer active in keeping up on incoming comments from my blog, but I happen to notice that you're a fellow editor/ media artist and zinester, so I had to show courtesy.

QUESTION: I'm looking to archive the full WODZ collection via some webbased digital service. Are you familiar with this or have any ideas you can share?

Answer, I wish I could've shared something to your project. Tell you what, next time you know to share from the WODZ content posted here on my blog - you're more than welcome, re-print it, re-produce it. WODZ is 'COPYLEFT', "ATTRIBUTION", 'D & D' (duplicate & distribute) freely. And I can add an "something from the editor" in a comment about that content you want to share that would add some authenticity to it. Take care!)